

We are pleased to share that TIME magazine has named Ascend Elements a company co-founded by ACRC's director, Diran Apelian, one of America's Top Ten Green Tech Companies of 2024. Ascend Elements recycles EV batteries, recovering and reusing the elements that go into making the cathode of lithium-ion.

TIME and Statista ranked 250 of America's top sustainability-focused companies, based on their positive environmental impact, financial strength, and innovation, to see who is rising to the top of the field. Statista analyzed data points such as value of the company's intellectual property portfolio, revenue and funding, and environmental data specific to each industry, such as carbon capture, offsets, and renewable energy generated.

Please click here to read more.